SYNOPSIS: Yoo Min-ho, CEO of an IT company, is the prime suspect for the murder of Kim See-hee, his former mistress, after the police find him with her body in a hotel room that was locked from the inside. Min-ho's lawyer recommends that Min-ho engage crack defense attorney Yang Shin-ae to defend him.

Shin-ae travels to Min-ho's remote snow-covered cabin to meet him for the first time and decide if she wants to take the case. Min-ho tells her that he and See-hee hadn't seen each other since they ended their affair two months earlier, and they only met at the hotel following the instructions of someone who was trying to blackmail them over the affair. Min-ho claims that an unseen assailant attacked him, and when he awoke See-hee was already dead.

Shin-ae advises Min-ho to be truthful with her, as she suspects that the case is connected with the disappearance of a young man named Han Seon-jae. Min-ho says that two months ago he and See-hee met at the cabin, where he ended the affair. As they were leaving in Min-ho's company car, See-hee swerved the car to avoid a deer, which caused their car to stall and another car to crash into a boulder. Fearful of having their affair exposed, See-hee convinced Min-ho to get rid of the other car and its dead driver, Seon-jae. While Min-ho left to dispose the car and body, See-hee waited in the stalled company car, and was helped by Han Young-seok, a mechanic who happened to be passing by. Young-seok is Seon-jae's father.

Min-ho and See-hee returned to their lives, and Min-ho had his lawyer destroy the implicated company car and report it as stolen. However, Young-seok reported Seon-jae's disappearance and shared a description of See-hee and the car with the police, making her a suspect.

Shin-ae suggests to Min-ho that the blackmail message he received was not about the affair, but about the incident with Seon-jae. She tells Min-ho that Seon-jae's mother, Lee Hee-jung, was the receptionist at the hotel, and that it's possible that Seon-jae's parents worked together to kill See-hee and frame Min-ho to avenge their son. Min-ho approves of this defense strategy and claims that he saw Young-seok in the room, but Shin-ae calls this out as a lie.

Shin-ae reveals that she lied about Seon-jae's mother working in the hotel, in order to force Min-ho to tell the truth. Shin-ae suggests that Min-ho was the real decision-maker of the incident instead of See-hee: he was driving the car and he decided to cover it up by disposing of the body. See-hee, however, was racked with guilt and contacted Young-seok to admit her role in Seon-jae's disappearance. There was no blackmailer; See-hee sent the message to Min-ho to meet at the hotel, where she hoped to convince him to confess as well, but Min-ho killed her and let himself be arrested by the police.

Min-ho confesses that this scenario is accurate and that he did kill See-hee. Shin-ae signs the agreement committing herself to be Min-ho's attorney, and proposes that they plant evidence on Seon-jae's body to let See-hee be posthumously solely responsible for covering up his death. Min-ho points to the lake where he sunk the car on a map, but adds that Shin-ae needs to destroy the wrench that is in the car; Seon-jae was still alive when Min-ho was about to push the car into the water, and Min-ho beat him to death with the wrench.

It is revealed that Shin-ae is Lee Hee-jung, Seon-jae's mother. She and Young-seok kidnapped the real Yang Shin-ae in order to stage the meeting with Min-ho and have him confess where Seon-jae's body is. Min-ho realizes the truth when he compares with the real Shin-ae's signature with Hee-jung's. He attacks Hee-jung and reveals that he lied about the location of the body. He calls the police and makes it appear that Hee-jung tried to kill him. The police arrest Hee-Jung and Yeong-Seok, the latter of whom was outside listening in on the conversation.

However, Hee-jung has realized that Min-ho traveled to the cabin on purpose. Seon-jae's car and body are in the lake directly next to the cabin, and Hee-jung came here to find the wrench that he used to kill Seon-jae. The police dig into the frozen lake and find the car, which prompts Min-ho's arrest.
