Persatuan Perawat Nasional Indonesia (PPNI) was born on March 17, 1974. The same spirit of determination was expressed by pioneering nurses that nursing staff must be in the Indonesian nursing professional forum/organization. At that time, before 1974, the organization of nurses in Indonesia had developed rapidly according to its era, since the colonial era, Indonesian nurses had existed along with the existence of hospitals, namely: Resident Vpabst (1819) in Batavia, at that time it changed to Stadsverband (1919) and changed to CBZ (Central Burgerlijke Zieken Inrichting) in the Salemba area which is currently RSCM.

At that time, nurses already had associations as a forum for nursing organizations and could carry out movements in determining the dignity of the nursing profession. At that time there were several organizations including; Indonesian Nurses Association (PKVI), Indonesian Health Professionals Association (PDKI), Indonesian Nurses Association (PPI), Indonesian Nurses Association (IPI).
